

Peckar & Abramson's Latin American Practice Group Participates in 2017 Annual Meeting of Construlegal® in Mexico City Along With 16 Member Firms

Miami, FL- July 11, 2017 – Members of the Latin American Practice Group of national construction law firm Peckar & Abramson, P.C. (P&A) participated in the 2017 Annual Meeting of Construlegal, a working alliance of construction law firms, which was co-founded by Peckar & Abramson and is dedicated to serving the construction industry throughout the Americas. Construlegal's fourth annual meeting was held in Mexico City, Mexico on June 21-23, 2017 and included some of the top attorneys from 16 member firms practicing construction and infrastructure law from 15 countries in the Americas. The meeting was hosted by COMAD, Construlegal's Co-Founder in Mexico.

"Economic and political changes and opportunities in Latin America and the region demand that we continue to deliver a comprehensive and enhanced level of service to our clients on their projects in the Americas," said Jerry P. Brodsky, Director of Peckar & Abramson's Latin American Practice Group.

P&A was represented by Partners Jerry P. Brodsky (Co-Founder), Neal I. Sklar, and Associate Fernando Langa, who heads Construlegal's Juniors League. In addition to a discussion of current issues, trends and strategies, presentations were made from the top engineering/consulting firms in the region. Construlegal members welcomed the participation and enriching contributions of distinguished clients and other leading professionals in the construction industry – all of whom share a common goal and commitment to the development of vital infrastructure and construction projects needed by so many communities in all member nations.
