International Construction and Infrastructure Attorney Olivier C. Larzul Joins New York Office of National Construction Law Firm Peckar & Abramson as Special Infrastructure Counsel

NEW YORK, NY - September 28, 2017 – National construction law firm Peckar & Abramson, P.C. (P&A) is pleased to announce that International Construction and Infrastructure attorney Olivier C. Larzul has joined the firm's New York office as Special Infrastructure Counsel.

Larzul is a seasoned, tri-lingual (English, French and German) international construction attorney with 20 years of experience in global EPC (Engineering, Procurement and Construction) projects and project financing transactions in a variety of sectors including transportation, energy, aerospace and defense, among others. His widespread, comprehensive experience includes serving as General Counsel and Managing Group Counsel for multinational companies, diversified industrial players and international consulting groups in and around Paris.

Participating directly in worldwide public-private partnership (P3) projects that include tunnels, ports, sewage and power plants, Larzul has deep expertise successfully managing legal teams, contract engineers and insurance managers, as well as conducting construction risk analysis and litigation monitoring tools. He has handled complex project financing transactions in France, South Korea and Africa and was involved in projects in Africa, Australia, France, Eastern Europe, South Korea, the United Kingdom and Finland. Most recently, he was the General Counsel of SYSTRA (a SNCF/RATP subsidiary), an international engineering and consulting group specializing in rail and public transport. Before SYSTRA, he held various legal positions with leading companies, including Air Liquide, Razel (a Fayat subsidiary) and Bouygues.

Larzul is admitted to practice in the State of New York, and he received a Master of U.S. Legal Studies from the University of Connecticut School of Law. He holds a postgraduate law degree in public business law including deregulation, utilities, concessions and public procurement, from Paris Sud University School of Law & Paris-Dauphine University.
