

Peckar & Abramson Attorney David J. Scriven-Young Named Council Member for the ABA Litigation Section

Peckar & Abramson, P.C. (P&A) is pleased to announce that David J. Scriven-Young, senior counsel in the firm's Chicago, Illinois office, has been selected as a member of the Council for the American Bar Association (ABA) Litigation Section for the 2023-2024 term. The slate was unanimously approved at the Council meeting in January and was presented to the Section membership at their Annual Business Meeting in August.

Edward O. Pacer, managing partner of P&A's Chicago office, commented, "On behalf of P&A, we are extremely proud of David's selection as a council member for the ABA Litigation Section, as it recognizes his commitment to an organization as important as the ABA, which serves as a valuable resource for those in our profession." He continued, "We are confident that David's dedication, leadership and professionalism will positively impact the strategic governance of the section."

David had previously served on the Council as the Young Lawyers Division representative. After that Council role, he joined leadership in 2016 as Co-Chair of the Young Litigator Task Force and has also served as Co-Chair of the section's Social Media, Communications, Membership and Marketing, and Audio Content Committees. David also hosts the section's podcast, Litigation Radio.
