BIO

Julia is an associate in the firm's Washington, D.C. office where she focuses her practice on construction law and litigation. During her time in law school, Julia gained substantial experience as a law clerk at P&A where she conducted extensive legal research, prepared court documents, drafted legal analyses, participated in client meetings, and assisted in developing litigation strategies. She also completed a judicial internship under Judge Christine Bandin through the American Bar Association's Judicial Intern Opportunity Program, where she analyzed case facts, performed legal research, and observed both criminal and civil court proceedings.

Julia earned a Bachelor's degree in Political Science and Government from George Washington University, along with a B.A. in International Relations and Affairs from the Elliott School of International Affairs. She then went on to complete her Juris Doctor at the American University Washington College of Law.
